
Tatum named partner at Banks, Stubbs and McFarland

From staff reports

A local law firm recently announced the addition of a new partner.

Eric Tatum has been chosen as a partner for Banks, Stubbs and McFarland, LLP, at 309 Pirkle Ferry Road, Building F.

Tatum will lead the domestic side of the firm, with his primary practice focusing on family law litigation. He also has experience in criminal defense litigation, personal injury litigation and will and estate preparation.

He is a graduate of Presbyterian

Tatum

College, where he majored in economics and business management, and Georgia State University's College of Law. Tatum was admitted to the state bar in 2011 and was owner of his own firm from 2012 to 2017.

Tatum was born and raised in Gwinnett County and enjoys church on Sundays and watching the Atlanta Braves and Falcons.